

NOTE: This article developed from discussion with Professor Constant Mews, Monash Medieval Historian at Monash University.

The only book-length life is by Father Carthage [McCarthy], OCSO Cistercian of Mount Melleray Abbey, Co. Waterford, The Story of St. Carthage, Otherwise Saint Mochuda (VIIth Cent.) Dublin: Browne & Nolan 1937. This draws on earlier Lives in Latin and Old Irish. For more recent accounts, see Pádraig Ó Riain, A Dictionary of Irish Saints, Dublin: Four Courts Press 2011, 470-473, and Constant Mews, 'The Flight of Carthage (Mochuda) from Rahan to Lismore: Lineage and identity in early medieval Ireland', in Early Medieval Europe 21/1 (2013), 1-26.

Detailed discussion and sources are in my article, 'St Carthage in Australasia', in Celts and their Cultures at Home and Abroad, ed. Anders Ahlqvist and Pamela O'Neill, Sydney: Sydney University Press) 2013.

A more detailed discussion of the Parkville windows appears in Footprints. Journal of the Melbourne Diocesan Historical Commision, Vol 28, No 1 (June 2013)
